CSSI Technologies Acquired By Company President Joe Tosolt

LEWISBURG, PA October 20, 2023 — CSSI Technologies, an 11-employee industrial technology firm based in Lewisburg, PA which serves the rapidly expanding warehouse and distribution sector, announced that it has transitioned to new ownership. Company president Joe Tosolt purchased the business from long-time owner Dave Cornelius upon his retirement.

“I am thrilled to be able to carry on the tradition of technology leadership and excellent customer support established by Dave Cornelius in his years of ownership,” said Joe Tosolt, CSSI president and owner. “We will continue to support customers as they empower their edge workers, and improve productivity, inventory accuracy, security, and data availability throughout their organizations.”

Originally founded in 1973 by Ronald Lewis as Computer Support Services Group, Inc., the company was acquired in 1978 by Dave Cornelius and Del Ritter. The firm achieved success selling rapidly evolving computer hardware, software, and business forms, earning a spot in the Inc 5000 in 2007. With additional partner Tom Erickson, the company later developed Core Integrator, a successful accounts payable automation software package. Core Integrator was split off as an independent company in 2018.

Today CSSI Technologies LLC provides 3 business lines: 1) Rugged mobile computing and data capture technologies such as barcoding and RFID, which empower edge workers and improve business efficiency; 2) Support and service for Microsoft Dynamics GP accounting software, and 3) Custom programming services. While the company originally focused on the Pennsylvania market and continues to serve many leading regional companies, today the customer base is increasingly national in scope.

Tosolt is a Pennsylvania native and Lehigh University MBA, and formerly the CEO of Innovative Office Products LLC in Easton, PA. He will continue to operate with the same experienced staff from the company headquarters in Lewisburg, PA.
